DESCRIPTION OF GENERAL FEATURES

The piece de resistance is the dress of "Duchesse Lace," floriated design of intense beauty; the filiny, flouncing draperies, and bodice are so deftly posed upon the form, that you cannot tell how it has been done, but simply know that it is faultiessly perfect—the price of this robe is $1,000. There is another duchesse lace dress, which if perchance you see first, your verdict will be that it is perfect, and so it is, until you see the other—price soft is not an exhibit which is not interesting to the visitor. Some of the latest arrivals are very pretty and attractive. In the display by Groetzinger is an immense tiger skin with the head attached. The eyes in the head are illuminated by electric light, which gives the head a peculiarly ferocious appearance.

In a jeweler's display near the center of

In a jeweler's display near the center of the hall is shown a peculiar astronomical apparatus, made by James F. Surratt, of Steubenville, O. It is called a cosmochrontrope, which may be interpreted as a universe-time-measurer. This complicated mechanism required eight years of labor by Mr. Surratt. It not only keeps the local time, but shows sidereal time, the movements of the sun and moon, and the relations of the earth to the constellations. A globe is fixed at the proper angle to the plane of the ecliptic, and it revolves on its axis once in 24 hours. The situation of the sun relative to the earth's revolving inclination is also shown, as the seasons pass. The equinoxes are indicated and once in a year the earth returns to the same position in relation to the sun. The globe is surrounded by a large net-work, representing the heavens, and on this are fixed the principal stars and constellations. These are but a few of the features of this marvelous piece of mechanism, which will prove of great interest to all students of as-In a jeweler's display near the center of Another section of the case (which, by the

The Usual Lively Badinage at the County W. C. T. U. Meeting.

Charge That Non-Partisan Amendments Are Republican Blinds.

ANNUAL CONVENTION IN SESSION.

MANY UNIONS ARE REPRESENTED. An amendment to the W. C. T. U. constitution, providing that in the future the object of the organization should be non-partisan and non-sectarian, as offered by Mrs. Sands, created a lengthy discussion at the afternoon session of the County W. C. stitution, providing that in the future the the afternoon session of the County W. C. T. U. Convention vesterday. When the proposed amendment had been read Miss McConnell arose to the point of order that there being no constitution an amendment was not possible. The constitution had, she stated, been lost or mislaid. Mrs. Campbell replied with some warmth that the last speaker must have been misled. She, Mrs. Campbell, distinctly re membered the adoption of the constitution at a meeting in the Third Presbyterian Church of Allegheny, and that she would be ashamed to belong to a body that had no constitution.

The amendment was then the subject of general discussion. Some were in favor of it as they thought that the W. C. T. U. should be pledgeless. Mrs. Campbell, in particular, stated that she did not want her actions controlled by any political party. But things took a livelier turn when Mrs. W. C. Gormley secured the floor. "She maintained that the non-partisan allusion in the amendment was simply a Republicar blind. Mrs. Campbell rapped smartly with her gavel and stated that Mrs. Gormley was out of order. The gavel became disjointed during the above process, but the President picked up the pieces and went on to state that Mrs. Gormley's assertion meant to imply that those who offered the amendment did so in the interest of the Republican party, and she called upon Mrs. Gormley to etract or abandon the floor.

Mrs. Gormley appealed to the sense of the neeting. Mrs. Campbell retorted that no matter how much the speaker might appeal, she (Mrs. Campbell) was President, and that Mrs. Gormley must retract or subside, and then Mrs. Campbell appealed to the delegates to sustain the Chair. A number of voices called out in support of her position.

Mrs. Gormley took her seat, but, womanlike, fired the following Parthian arrow: "I will sit down, but I will never retract; non-partisan—Republican every time."

Quiet having been restored, the amendment was voted down. Miss McConnell, as Treasurer, submitted her report for the last year. The receipts were $1,178 82, and the expenditures were $1,395 95. An adjournment for supper was then had.

At the morning session Mrs. H. C. Campbell called the convention to order at 10 o'clock, and devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. J. W. Sproull. Mrs. A. F. Brice, corresponding secretary, presented a report showing the growth of the local unions throughout the county. At this juncture the president, Mrs. Campbell, anjuncture the president, Mrs. Campbell, announced the standing committees for the convention as follows: Credentials—Miss McConnell, Mrs. Hennings, Mrs. Courtney. Resolutions—Mrs. Sands, Mrs. Aiken, Mrs. Gibson, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Devore, Mrs. Sproull. [Time and Place for the next Convention—Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Sawhill, Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Caball. Plan of Work—Miss Gemmill, Miss Monroe, Mrs. Ayres, Miss Sanford, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Foster. Courtesies—Mrs. Peoples, Mrs. Sloan, Miss Horr.

There were 27 unions represented and 36 either in arrears or without delegates on hand.

WITH CONSIDERABLE POMP Will the New Turners' Hall in Allegheny be Dedicated. The new Turner Hall now in course of construction on Canal street, Allegheny, will be dedicated with imposing ceremonies on Thanksgiving Day. Arrangements have been made for a grand procession of all the German societies in the county and many from adjoining towns, to precede the dedi-catory ceremonies. John N. Neeb has been chosen Chief Marshal of the parade. The procession will form in three divisions— Northside, middle and Southside, the organizations of each to choose their own division marshal. Dr. Herman W. Heckelman will deliver the German oration, and an oration in the English language will be delivered by a gentleman yet to be selected.

quest on the victims of the Homestead steel mill explosion. Several witnesses told the BRANCH OFFICES. same story already printed. Coroner Mc-Dowell read the affidavit of William G. public, Branch Offices have been Lane, of Turtle Creek, brother of Isaac Lane. Lane was in his 24th year. He told established at the following places where Want, For Sale, To Let, and his brother that the accident was due to a other transient advertisements will wet bottom. On Sunday Lane told his brother that when the ladle was litted from be received up to 9 P. M. for insertion next morning: the pit water was dripping from the bottom. They had filled a ten-ton mold out of the ladle and half filled another when the ex-

Andrew Keppler, aged 41 years, came to his death on Friday, August 30, 1889, about 2 o'clock P. M., from burns and scalds received about 1:35 P. M., while employed as a pitman in Carnegie, Phipps & Company's Steel works, Homestead borough, by the ladle of steel boiling up and exploding while being poured into molds, and falling upon him and burning him. And from all the evidence the jury find that said explosion was due to the following reasons:

First.—That the bottom of the ladle used to pour the said heat was not and had not been given proper time to dry.
Second.—That Isaac Lane, deceased, who was ladleman, and N. W. Shade, smelter of No. 2 furnace, were negligent in running said heat of steel into this ladle when it was not in proper condition, and should be therefor, The jury recommend that said firm have at least one extra ladle for use around the fur-nace, and not allow molds to stand too close to the pit for the safety of workingn in case of Coroner McDowell said that this verdict covered the deaths of the other victims.
